Dear Harold,

I just received your books today, and look forward to reading them immediately. As I have said in the past, I've learned more from your work than all the other writers combined. I was most interested in your observation as to why my wife and I disagree about the assassination. Like yourself, I do not believe that the true story of who killed President Kennedy will ever be revealed. The important thing, I think, is that our government must be compelled to own up to the fact that they engaged in a massive coverup regarding the assassination of the President of the United States. The fact of this coverup is incontrovertible as you have shown in Post Mortem alone. Until the United States government that CONTINUES to cover up facts in the assassination is forced to take accountability for this crime against the public, this issue cannot be put to rest.

I think that most people who research or write about the assassination miss the point. To many of them, the murder of J.F.K. has become a simple who dunnit. A way to a quick buck. The issue raised by Kennedys death was that of national trust, and how that trust was betrayed by our elected officials. It is an issue that, sooner or later, this nation will have to address.

As always, please let me know if there is any way I may be of help.

All My Best,

Ed
